Foodbank South Australia is a non-profit organisation established in South Australia in 2000, with a vision to achieve a South Australia without hunger. They source food from the food industry and make it available to welfare agencies and people in need.

They work with the food and grocery industry to give new life to donated and surplus food. Foodbank SA also collaborate with farmers, manufacturers, and government on innovative programs to produce key staple foods such as pasta, breakfast cereals, sauces and sausages.

Foodbank SA offers a variety of foods either free of charge or at very low cost to welfare and community support agencies, including schools. Foodbank has warehouses at Edwardstown, Berri, Mount Gambier and Whyalla.

Last financial year alone, Foodbank South Australia provided enough food for more than 5 million meals, providing food relief to 102,718 South Australians every month. More than one third of these were children.

Foodbank SA supplies food to more than 550 welfare agencies and community groups, and work with over 400 schools across Adelaide's metro, regional and country areas.

We were honoured to be taken through the warehouse by Greg Pattinson, Foodbank SA Chief Executive together with Dianne Nicholas, Donor Relations Coordinator.

After our visit to Foodbank SA, members enjoyed a meal at the Hilton Hotel.
